As Chairman of the Longford Age Friendly Alliance I am delighted to present this 5 year Age Friendly strategy for County Longford.

Longford has a great quality of life and a wonderful community spirit and by signing up to Ireland’s National Age Friendly City & County Programme we hope to make Longford a better place to grow old in. It is clear that the percentage of Longford’s population age 65 or over will increase over the next five to ten years and it is important that we take steps now to plan for the future. Figures from the Central Statistics Office show that the population of Longford grew by 13.3% between 2006 and 2011 and the number of people aged 65 years and over make up 13% of the County’s population compared to 11.6% nationally. The benefits of establishing an Age Friendly strategy for Longford are wide ranging and significant.

An Age Friendly County is a place where more and more older people can stay living in their own homes and communities, lead healthy and active lives, get to where they want to go, when they want to go, and are valued contributors to the lives of their communities.

Longford County Council, together with its partners, is committed to ensuring that the older members of our community are listened to, included in all aspects of the life of the community and are given every opportunity to live full active and healthy lives. This strategy is the culmination of a detailed consultation process that has brought together the key service providers from the statutory, voluntary and community sectors together with our older citizens to identify how we can make Longford a great place to live as we grow older.

I would like to sincerely thank all the members of the Age Friendly Alliance from all sectors for their enthusiasm and commitment to the development of this strategy and for their ongoing support to ensuring that Longford can truly become an Age Friendly Community.

Tim Caffrey
Chairman
Longford Age Friendly Alliance
Introduction

This is the first Age Friendly Strategy for County Longford. It is a strategy that gives commitments to improving key areas of infrastructure, services, information, and our overall social response to older people’s issues in Longford.

The strategy has been developed by the Longford Age Friendly Alliance in consultation and co-operation with older people in Longford. The Alliance was formally established in 2015. It is made up of senior personnel in public sector agencies, older people’s representatives and other organisations that promote a positive approach to ageing. Each of the Alliance members has given commitments in this strategy that will significantly help to improve the quality of life of older people in Longford in the coming years.

Members of Longford Age Friendly Alliance are:

— Longford County Council (Chief Executive)
— Health Service Executive (Area Manager)

— Longford Older Persons Network (Chairperson)
— Longford Public Participation Network (Resource Worker)

An Age Friendly County has been described by Age Friendly Ireland as a County that recognises the great diversity among older people and promotes their inclusion in all areas of community life. It is a County that respects their decisions and lifestyle choices and anticipates and responds to related needs and preferences.

Our ambition to be Age Friendly means that Longford will • Become one of the greatest places to grow old in;
• Have easily accessible public buildings, shops and services;
• Incorporate older people’s views into significant decisions being made about the County;
• Promote a positive attitude to ageing and address stereotypes about older people;
• Create opportunities for older people to be engaged with their County socially, as employees and as volunteers.

This is a far-reaching strategy with 42 actions that will be delivered over the five year period. Many of the actions will have a very tangible impact on the County, while others, such as those relating to awareness-raising work, will be more subtly felt.
Population Profile of Longford

County Longford experienced a large increase in population during the intercensal period of 2006 and 2011, with the Census 2011 data determining an increase of 13.3%, bringing the population to 39,000 people. This increase was greater than the national average. Figures from the Midland Regional Authority (2013) project the population to reach 43,080 by 2016 (+10.4%).

Approximately 4,883 of County Longford’s population are aged 65 years and over, comprising 13% of the County’s total population, compared to 11.6% nationally.

The data show that the age group with the highest proportion of older people living alone is within the 80 to 84 age group. Upon more in-depth assessment of persons living alone, CSO data also reveal that approximately 65% of all those living alone and over the age of 80 are female (Source: CSO).

availing of this service daily. This service is allocated on a priority basis, based on assessment by the Public Health Nurse service.

Home Care Packages
In Longford-Westmeath, approximately 235 people are supported through Home Care Packages in addition to home help support. These packages can include: nursing, physiotherapy, dietetics and enhanced home help, etc. Packages of care are designed to reflect the assessed needs of the individual, however there can be waiting lists for both of these services based on resource availability.

Why is Longford adopting an Age Friendly Strategy?
Statistics both nationally and globally tell us that populations are ageing as people are living longer, healthier lives. The Department of Health notes that by the year 2021, the number of older people living in the State is expected to increase to 775,000, representing an increase of 55 per cent in 11 years.

The World Health Organization has been carrying out important work in this area through its ‘Age Friendly Cities’ programme. This programme is part of an international effort to address environmental and social factors that contribute to active and healthy ageing. The programme helps cities and communities to become more supportive of older people by addressing their needs across eight themes:
- Outdoor spaces and Buildings
- Transportation
- Housing
- Social Participation
- Respect and Social Inclusion
- Civic Participation and Employment
- Communication and Information
- Community support and Health Services
In Longford, we recognise that the number of older people is increasing year on year, and that there will be increasing demand on services into the future. We also recognise that older people today have higher expectations and want to be involved, to be heard and included. While it is necessary to plan for services for the future, we are also focusing on the opportunities that an ageing society brings. Older people are a valuable resource, and have an important contribution to make to their local community.

Age Friendly work is taking place in most counties in Ireland. The Age Friendly Counties Programme is being supported at national level by Age Friendly Ireland. Regionally, Longford will link with partner counties of Westmeath, Roscommon, Leitrim, Cavan and Monaghan.

This strategy has been developed following extensive consultation with older people and service providers in County Longford. The voice of older people has been central to the development of the strategy and older people will play a key role in its implementation.

National Policy on Ageing

There are various policy documents of relevance to this area of work. Key among them is the National Positive Ageing Strategy 2013. The strategy provides the blueprint for planning for an ageing population in Ireland into the future.

Another key policy document is the National Action Plan for Social Inclusion (2007-2016) ‘Building an Inclusive Society’, which is structured around a lifecycle framework with older people as a core category. High level goals for older people focus on community care and income support.

Other pertinent policy documents include the National Carer’s Strategy (2012) and the National Dementia Strategy (2014). Numerous health-related policies are also relevant, among them the national policy on elder abuse arising from the Report of the Working Group on Elder Abuse,

Outcomes-based Planning

The Longford Age Friendly Alliance will seek to ensure that this strategy achieves measurable outcomes for older people that demonstrate improvements in their quality of life. To guide us in this ambition, we will use an outcomes-based planning approach based on the framework developed by Age Friendly Ireland.

This approach begins with the end result in mind. This will determine the actions and activities which will achieve the best results. By beginning the planning process with broad outcomes, it is very clear that no one body or service on its own can achieve these outcomes, but that collaboratively working together, huge strides can be made to improve the lives of older people. This approach will allow the Alliance to demonstrate progress in implementing its action plan – to show that it is ‘making a difference’ – by identifying relevant ways of measuring progress and tracking these indicators over the lifetime of the action plan. This ensures effective use of scarce resources.

Most importantly, this approach brings the needs of older people right to the core of the planning process and ensures that their views, opinions and experiences are fully considered.

‘Outcomes’ for older people in this context means that they:

1. Are truly valued and respected
2. Can get to where they want, when they want
3. Feel and be safe at home and when out and about
4. Are enabled by the built and social environment
5. Can stay living in their own homes and communities
6. Continue to learn, develop and work
7. Participate in social, economic and public life
8. Have the information they need to lead full lives
9. Can lead healthier and active lives for longer

In order for this approach to work it is important that policies, strategies and services are based on a positive ageing approach that is informed by the needs of older adults and evidenced from research.

Each action set out in this strategy will contribute to the achievement of one or more of the above-named outcomes.

• Some well designed housing estates – with lots of amenity space, which older people identified as important
• Living in their own homes independently is important to older people
• Longford has been very proactive in terms of unfinished estates such as ensuring drop kerbs and tactile paving are in place where needed

Issues raised by Older People

• Older people feel that they need more support to continue to live independently
• Policing of privately rented dwellings, particularly with regard to anti-social behaviour is an area of concern for older people.
• Older people would like more information about, and access to grants to improve security, e.g. locks and alarms
• Improved street lighting is needed in existing housing developments and new builds, to make older people feel safer
• Complex application forms and procedures can be a barrier for older people

What we want to achieve

Older People can stay living in their own homes and communities, and feel a sense of safety at home and while out and about.

- Train station – is great amenity to help older people get around the country
- Schools have run a number of intergenerational initiatives – e.g. grandparents are invited into school
- The annual Bealtaine Festival is a great event for older people

Issues Raised by Older People

- Better communication about the range of clubs and events available is needed, with the co-ordination and awareness of events between various groups

- Expansion of the current ‘Friendly Phone Call Service’, which is a good model for communication and supporting isolated older people

4.3 We can also investigate the possibility of schools being used as ‘Community Hubs’ out of school hours, and during the summer holidays and other downtime periods. A school is a focal point of many rural communities and could serve as a key resource in terms of tackling rural isolation.

Outputs

- An increase in the number of older people who are confident using digital technology

What is working well for Older People

- Primary Care Centre is very good at Ballyminion, Longford
- Services such as St. Joseph’s day care are a great resource
- Health Service Executive (HSE) Home Help Services good – but could be extended and longer visits provided
- Canal walk is lovely – promotes peace of mind. Great physical activities in the Mall for the active aged. Both help promote positive mental health
- The Meals on Wheels is a fantastic service

Issues raised by Older People

- The long waiting lists at the Health Services. There can be delays of up to 14 months on the Fair Deal Scheme leading to huge financial cost on the family
- There can be duplication of effort between Community Services and Health Services
- Local Health Care Centres are too small. There is a need to centralise services in Primary Care Centres
- Application forms for Health Service Executive (HSE) Services can be daunting to complete due to technical language and small print
- Primary focus on health issues seems to be reactive; there should be more emphasis on prevention
- There is a need for a wide range of home support and care services – from helping with shopping and/ or providing meals to home visits from doctors and other service providers
- GP services are good but stretched. 3 GP’s moved out of Longford Town and there no shuttle bus to the new Health Centre
